

Kast Hasa was born in the town of Divjaka, Albania. His childhood was all about music. Towards the end of his music school years, it was acting who sparked Kast's interest and became his sole focus. He studied acting at the Academy of Fine Arts in Albania, and in 2000, he moved to Los Angeles to follow his acting career. In 2002, he became a member of SAG (Screen Actors Guild). His acting credits include: Out of Touch, A Father Taken, What I Like About You, Soldier of God, etc. In Los Angeles, he also studied film directing. As a Writer/Director, Kast did the short film "Home", a multi-award winning film, including, "Best Albanian Movie" at the Tirana International Film Festival, 2011. Currently, Kast is working on a feature film.
